Trip to ACE Agro Technology and Raaga Foundation on 10.01.2020.

The Department of Genetics and Biotechnology organized a field trip for the third year B.ScBtGC students on 10th of January, 2020, to ACE Agro Technology, Kompally and Raaga Foundation, Dindigul.

A batch of thirty students were accompanied by two faculty members of the Department, i.e., Dr. Naga Manju and Mrs. D. Metilda Rosalin.

The field trip to ACE Agro Technology started on a good note, where we visited commercial production of Banana and date plantlets, through Tissue Culture.

The Director of the farm, Mr. Biju and his coworkers accompanied the students and staff to the lab in groups. They explained the production process in detail by allowing the students to view the procedure happening inside the plant tissue culture room where inoculation of the explants and subculturing of the callus took place. The students also visited the lab where inoculated tissue cultured bottles were incubated under regular intervals of photoperiod.

Mr. Biju took special interest in explaining and allowing the students to visit the working area where medium preparation and autoclaving took place that made his commercial production outstanding.

The entire institute maintained a very clean atmosphere to avoid contamination. The students were astonished at the discipline and aseptic conditions maintained. Finally they bid farewell to the institute wholeheartedly thanking them for the opportunity given for the visit.

Next, they visited Raaga Foundation which is a zoo where many species of birds and animals (reptiles, cattle, poultry, etc) were raised with personal care which paved the way to learn about animal behavior and their general instincts. This was maintained by Mr. Nanda Kishore, our alumini, who showed great passion in raising the animals as his pets in an environment friendly way. The students thoroughly enjoyed observing the animals and birds that educated them about their specificities, genetic diversity and evolution. Everyone appreciated Mr. Nandakishore for his tireless efforts in taking care of these species portraying the necessity of human - animal interaction. During the venture, he addressed the students letting them know the struggle he overcame to travel this far. He also counselled them to take studies seriously and work hard.

Finally, the students went home thanking the department and the college for the above opportunity, and requested more such field trips in future.

Report on practical training program at the Institute of Genetics- October 2016

The students of BSc Life Sciences III year participated in the practical training program on Diagnosis & Management of Genetic Diseases from 13-10-16 to 29-10-16 at the Institute of Genetics & Hospital for Genetic Diseases, Hyderabad.

On the first day, inauguration program was conducted where the students were introduced to the Vision and Mission of the Premier Institute. The participants were given a brief idea about the different departments, their tasks & challenges.

The participants were grouped into four different teams & sent to the following departments on rotation:

Department 1: Cell Biology: In this dept, students learned about Karyotyping, FISH (Fluorescence In situ Hybridization) and SKY (Spectral Karyotyping) techniques. They performed Karyotyping and FISH with their own blood samples in which they did slide preparation & chromosomal analysis by screening. There were practice sessions of matching homologous chromosome pairs & numbering of chromosomes on Karyotype paper, screening for various Genetic disorders such as Turner's, Down's, Klinefelter's syndrome, etc.

Department 2: Environmental Toxicology: In this dept, students conducted cytogenetic studies to identify DNA damage due to environmental stresses, such as chromosomal aberrations, Micronucleus assay, sister chromatid exchanges & Comet assay. Students performed Comet assay with their own blood sample and analyzed DNA damage by number of DNA breaks & length of the DNA tail.

Department 3: Clinical Genetics: This dept involves diagnosis, counseling & treatment of individuals & families with Genetic disorders. The students had a slide show presentation on the diagnostic technique of Ultrasonography. The students were also involved in Genetic Counseling sessions to families affected with Genetic disorders.

Department 4: Biochemistry: In this dept, the participants learned some biochemical tests like estimation of Copper from urine Sample (for diagnosis of Wilson's disease), lipid profile from serum sample, blood Glucose levels and also Neonatal screening for genetic disorders.

Department 5: Molecular Biology: In this dept, students performed DNA isolation by Sucrose and Phenol method & they used Sucrose method to isolate DNA using their own blood samples. They did DNA separation using Agarose Gel Electrophoresis. The students also carried out PCR for amplification of desired sequences of DNA. They were briefed about the working & principle of HPLC which is used to estimate the amount of fetal hemoglobin.

The participants also had an opportunity to interact with students at the Special school for the differently abled children, which is attached to the IOG.

At the end of the training program, the students had a special session on Career Counseling by Prof. N.Pratibha, Director of IOG. The students were awarded participation certificates by Prof. N.Pratibha. It was a very enlightening & motivating program for the students.

Dear Dr. Srilatha Reddy,

Greetings from nmore,

This is to confirm that as per our last telecon with Mrs Kamala Devi, we have agreed to conduct Data Analytics Certification Course for the M.Com students first, starting from 21st of July, 2017.

Our understanding is that there are 30 M.Com students. We also understand that the M.Com students are relatively free now. Hence we suggest that classes could be organised thrice in a week i.e., on Fridays & Saturdays followed by Mondays, if possible. This will ensure that the students will have 4 days, immediately after the conceptual sessions, to work on the practice sessions which will be provided to them.

Please let us know if this arrangement will work. In case the current schedule does not allow for classes to be organised on Mondays, let us know if any other weekday would be available for the same.
