The program was hosted by the students from the Department of Commerce, Bhavans, who imparted their knowledge on the career openings available in the stream of commerce and sowed the seeds of ideas and opportunities in all the young minds. The program witnessed a roaring participation of 100 CEC students. This was an attempt to train the young minds and make them aware of the various job offers that are currently prevailing in the market. This event was organised with a notion that 'The youth of today are the leaders of tomorrow', we cannot always build the future for our youth, but we can build our youth for the future. The program proved to be useful for both, the students who shared their knowledge and the students who acquired it, and served as a great platform for exchange of information.
